MAKING MARRIAGE EASY.

Certain clergymen have petitioned the Legislature for the removal of the present restrictions as to the residence of the parties to a marriage ceremony. We trust that our State will be the last to adopt any legislation to make marriage more easy. There is no difficulty under present laws for parties who should be allowed to marry to have the knot tied securely, and it is far better that some couple should not have their wishes gratified in the matter of who unites them, than that the doors shall be open for abuses which would inevitably follow any tampering with our laws regarding marriage. There are no restrictions to prevent parties to whose union there is no objection from marrying, and such restrictions as the laws provide are wisely made in the interest of good morals and in opposition to hasty and criminal marriages.

As the law now stands, a clergyman residing in Boston cannot legally marry a couple in Brookline, but if the Brookline couple can only be made happy by having a particular minister from Boston, they can get round the law, or rather fulfill its requirements by allowing their favorite clergyman to be "assisted" by one residing in Brookline. This is certainly no great hardship, the principal object in a marriage being that the parties shall be properly and legally married.

People rush into matrimony with sufficient haste, and we believe that any regulations which tend to retard such haste are much more liable to prove beneficial than any intended to make marriages more easy.

THE GREAT TRIAL.

Our readers may think enough has been written about Guiteau, but while there is the slimmest chance that by some technicality he may be granted a new trial, the people cannot rest easy. We don't think they could stand another such a dose as has been offered to them for the past two months and a half, and really we should feel that final conviction of the blasphemous low-lived fiend would be readily purchased with a repetition of the disgraceful scenes recently enacted in the Capital of the nation. We believe we speak the sentiment of the people of this country when we say, either hang Guiteau at once or let him go. One thing we should have cause to fear if he should escape the gallows, he would take to lecturing; and would reach the desire of his life by being made in a measure a martyr by being assassinated.

OUR CROWDED STREETS.

The matter of how the immense increase of travel through the various streets in the lower part of Boston is to be accommodated is one which has puzzled and will continue to puzzle the brains of our sharpest and shrewdest citizens. When it was first proposed to lay tracks for the horse cars, there was, as all who knew Boston twenty-five years ago will remember, the greatest opposition to the scheme. It would be very amusing at this time to read some of the articles then published, which strove first to prove that there was not and never would be travel enough to make horse cars a necessity, and second that they would ruin the property on every street through which they should pass. Now there are at least ten times, we don't know but fifty times as many cars run in Boston as there were when they first commenced to run; and yet, at certain hours of the day, all of those cars go packed, and it is very evident that the time will come when greater accommodations for travel must be found.

The idea of elevated roads is meeting with more favor, not because our people are more favorably inclined to them but because they seem at present to offer the only means of relief.

As we look back we can see how short-sighted Bostonians of the past were, or rather we can see how little they comprehended what the growth of the city was to be. We remember a tradition which we heard in our younger days, that one of the earlier chief magistrates of the city—Mayor Quincy the elder, we believe did understand that Boston was bound to grow, and he proposed then to widen and straighten some of the streets on what seemed at the time a too expensive and too extensive scale; but those changes could have been made for what would now appear to be an inconsiderable sum, and had others then been as far-sighted as was the mayor, we should at present be enjoying the privilege of wide streets and plenty of room for travel. To widen Washington and Tremont streets at this late day as they should be widened would swamp the credit of even the wealthy city of Boston; and still the question must be, when shall we find relief?

A BRIGHT REPLY.

The mention of Mayor Quincy reminds us of a pretty good story told of Josiah Quincy, Jr., when he was mayor of the city. We do not vouch for the truth of the story, but this is the way we heard it. Some persons who owned land at Point Shirley complained when the Revere Copper Company started their works near the Point, that the air from the furnaces was very injurious to horses pastured in the vicinity, thus reducing the value of the land. A committee of the city government, at the head of which was the mayor, visited Point Shirley by invitation of the Copper Company, and were entertained with a dinner such as cannot be obtained anywhere else in this country. After the dinner had been thoroughly and satisfactorily discussed, a gentleman present asked Mr. Quincy, "Well, what is your opinion of the air at Point Shirley for horses?" "I can't say," was the instant reply, "how the air here affects horses, but I must say that it agrees admirably with a Mayor."

The party took the joke, and the Copper Company were not requested to move their works.

IN VERY POOR TASTE.

One of our city papers has more than once spoken in a slurring way of the unchristianity of the chief magistrate of the commonwealth. Such remarks are, to say the least, in very poor taste, for the constitutions of our State and our country recognize no religious requisite to qualify a man to hold office. But such remarks as we have just quoted have very little effect; our people have learned that there are good men in every sect, and also that there are bad men who "put on the liver of God to serve the devil in." The time has past we hope never more to return, when a man's social or political standing here can be affected by the religious denomination to which his honest convictions lead him to attach himself.

What is the Matter With Our (North) High School?

The time is rapidly approaching when the wisdom of the town meets in session, and the important question concerning the school is the most important matter that the town is called upon to consider, because it bears not alone upon the school, but also upon the community upon whom it is taught in our schools and the manner in which that teaching is performed. In the town meeting to discuss this question thoroughly are not the citizens prepared to do without previous investigation, therefore, let me add, needly the place of use for this preliminary work, and what other than the columns of the public press is, under the present conditions of society?

First, we must consider what is possible, the cause of the failure of our High School, and provide a remedy.

It is known my true meaning. Is it a failure?

To answer this we must first ascertain the purpose of this school, what is to be done for the teacher to whom this responsibility is given, and the like.

It is not a place where a teacher can sit and do nothing, but just in state that he has in his present place of use for this preliminary work, and what other than the columns of the public press is, under the present conditions of society?

THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

As we proposed some weeks ago, there is no probability that any change will be made in the collectorship of this port. Mr. Beard is too old a ranger and too shrewd a political manager to either let go his hold of this, the biggest plum in the government pudding in New England, or to allow it to be wrested from him. We do not see that in his case there is any call for a change, other than the desire of some that he should stand aside to give some one else who has served the party well a chance; for Mr. Beard has made a good collector and has given satisfaction to those having business at the Custom House, though, as we know by experience, that latter qualification would not necessarily have the least weight with the appointing power at Washington, or with those who, under our beautiful civil service way of doing things, dictate to and control the appointing power.

There may be a change in the Surveyorship. The berth is a very comfortable one; the districts are not very arduous, and several patriotic gentlemen stand ready to serve their country and themselves by taking it if they can get it. We do not, however, believe in making a change just for the sake of Sull-a-Mor will be played the remainder of this and all of next week, and to those who want to understand something of the wrongs of Ireland and to see a play of thrilling interest splendidly presented, we say go to the Museum and see Sull-a-Mor.

LOCAL TOPICS.

Death. Our venerable and widely known resident, Mr. Thomas Nash, died last Sunday night, at the extreme age of 80 years 8 months. For many years he served the town as its Treasurer for a long period and also on the Board of Selectmen for many continuous terms. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when a large company of friends and acquaintances were present.

An extended obituary notice of the deceased has been received and will appear next week.

2nd VALENTINES,

AT VAUGHAN'S.

For a sure cure for Rheumatism, send for Circular to William Y. Cameron, Quincy, Mass.

Discontinued.

Herbert K. Cushing has discontinued running his passenger carriage to the Landing to convey workmen to E. Weymouth, owing to his horses being required for service of the Weymouth Iron Co.

Various Matters.

We learn that our physiotherapist, Mr. E. S. Hunt, has contracted to furnish exhibitions of fireworks at the Hotel Nantasket, next summer.

Mr. Alvin Pratt, who has been employed to the gilding shop of E. P. Nash, at So. Weymouth, has taken a position at L. O. Crocker's conductors' punch factory, to learn the business.

Mrs. Lewis Rich is visiting friends in Maine.

Mr. Herbert Gray, who has been at the South for sometime past, has located in the gold mining region of Georgia, 90 miles from Atlanta.

Mrs. Edw. Austin, residing on Mount Pleasant, is quite ill with diphtheria. Dr. Austin is at home.

The library of Mr. Shaw, principal of the North High School, still continues, and the trustees have presented the "services of Mr. Towne of Boston, as a substitute, until Mr. Shaw is able to resume his duties."

Mr. W. A. Clark, foreman at the Star Bakery, has entered into the matrimonial state, and his friends with him much joy.

A plucky bantam boy belonging to one of our neighbors has roosted all winter in the boughs of an apple tree, braving the severest weather and appearing to be in the same condition when the glass stood 15 below zero.

The SNOW STORM.

People out of the city who suffered some inconvenience from the two big snow storms, and who found it hard getting about last Monday morning, have little conception of the troubles of those in the city whom they considered much more fortunate than themselves. The country roads are, as a general thing, wide, and they certainly are not crowded, there is room enough to make a way through them and have some place to dispose of the superabundant snow. But in our narrow, crooked streets, it is next to impossible to dispose of it; what is removed from the sidewalks makes the driveways almost impassable. The entire stopping of the running of the horse cars is an inconvenience that must be experienced to be appreciated.

We have not had such a blockade of our streets since the great storm in January, 1857, and we don't believe any one in Boston desires to see such another for the next fifteen years.

THE ALDERMANIC COUNT.

The great contest for a seat in the board of aldermen, known as the Frost-Whitten case, has been decided by the full board in favor of seating Mr. Frost and unseating Mr. Whitten. Alderman Woolley created quite a ripple of excitement after the decision was rendered by charging that the collector of the port used his personal influence and also that of the institution over which he presides, to defeat Mr. Whitten at the election. We know not how much good foundation the alderman may have had for the charge, but such a charge was, to say the least, in very poor taste at the time and in the place it was made, and should not have been made at all unless the one making it had undoubtedly evidence, which we could adduce, to prove its truth. Mr. Whitten retired from the board with dignity, commanding not only the respect of all the members, but of the best portion of the voters of Boston, and stated with the greatest propriety that he contested his right to a seat in the board, not to gratify himself but as a duty he owed to those who voted for him.

OUR THEATRES.

Although we have now more theatres in Boston than in any previous season, the standard of plays presented and of the actors is not as high as it should be. There has been a lack of novelty in the pieces and of extra attractions in the way of stars. And yet the additional facilities afforded this season for people in the suburbs to visit the city in the evening, has induced such an amount of additional patronage that our theatres can well afford to give first class entertainments.

To the above, in regard to a lack of great attractions, we must, however, make two notable exceptions.

THE BOSTON THEATRE.

Opened the season with one of the most magnificent spectacles plays ever presented in this country—Michael Strogoff—which, week after week, completely filled the immense building. Then came John McCullough, a splendid actor in sterling plays and well supported. Now Denman Thompson is drawing packed houses in his great character of Joshua Whitcomb.

Clerk—Charles T. Crane.

WEYMOUTH HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

His engagement will close this week, therefore this evening and to-morrow afternoon and evening will be the last chances to see him. Next Monday Mary Anderson, one of the most brilliant stars in the theatrical firmament, will commence her fifth annual engagement at this house and those who want to see her must put in their appearance early.

BOSTON MUSEUM

Dion Boucicault is playing an engagement of eight weeks and has played consistently to crowded houses. The Colleen Bawn, The Shaughraun and Arrah na Pugue he had performed here before; his new play, SULL-A-MOR, was presented for the first time in this country last Monday evening, and was met with the most enthusiastic favor.

The play is intended to portray some of the realities of life in Ireland at the present time, and is so true that its presentation was prohibited in England. Mr. Boucicault is the greatest of modern play-wrights, and this his last production, is one of his best.

SULL-A-MOR will be played the remainder of this and all of next week, and to those who want to understand something of the wrongs of Ireland and to see a play of thrilling interest splendidly presented, we say go to the Museum and see SULL-A-MOR.

LOCAL TOPICS.

Death. Our venerable and widely known resident, Mr. Thomas Nash, died last Sunday night, at the extreme age of 80 years 8 months. For many years he served the town as its Treasurer for a long period and also on the Board of Selectmen for many continuous terms. Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when a large company of friends and acquaintances were present.

An extended obituary notice of the deceased has been received and will appear next week.

EAST WEYMOUTH.

Monday as Mr. Joseph Berry, employed by C. H. Pratt & Son, was carrying a box of shoes through the room, his foot slipped and he fell to the floor, breaking two ribs and knocking out a front tooth. Dr. Fay is in attendance.

Mr. Geo. Young conveyed about thirty young ladies and gentlemen to North Weymouth, Friday evening, to attend the dance given by the Active Engine Company.

About twenty of the members of the Hull Company Association please look this up? Zachary Bicknell, who came over with the Hull Company in 1635? Will the Bicknell family still be here? Zachary died the following year. He left but one child, a son John, who had a son Zachary, born in 1668. We have no record of any Zachary between them.

A solution of the question proposed sometime since by E. P. Beale Esq., "Where was Webb's Pudding?" was offered. The Congregationalists have several forms upon the various records, as "The Puddie," "Puddle Pasture," "Webb's Puddie" and the like. This was situated in the pasture lying between Mr. Thomas Humphrey's home place and the old Josiah Humphrey estate, the bridge on the road through which it drains into the pond, being familiarly known as "Puddle Bridge." One need only look at it to find a reason for the name.

Caster Leonard Stevens, residing on Cedar street, is quite sick, threatened with typhoid fever. Dr. Fay is in attendance. His many friends hope he may soon recover.

Quite a number were present at the society ball given by the members of Mechanics T. of H. in their hall Friday evening. Mrs. Mary Hunt favored the company with two songs sung in a very pleasing manner. Samuel Drew gave a very fine recitation, and George C. Cleverly, Brockton Turner gave a selection short and spry, and speeches made by Mrs. Donovan, Cain, Vinal, Dyer, Simmons, Collier and Dunbar, W. C. T. Charles W. Rice presided, and by his genial manner and pleasantness did much to entertain those present. These gatherings may be more frequent.

All Around The Hub.

AN APPEAL FOR MUNICIPAL SUPPORT.

Under this head an article has been prepared by Abby W. May, Julia Ward Howe, Sarah Shaw Russell, Ednah D. Cheney, Mary A. Livermore, Louisa May Alcott, Mary F. Eastman and Lucy Stone, and sent to the editors of most if not all of the papers in this State; but so far as we have observed very few editors have published the article in full, and yet the high characters, the eminent talents of the signers should entitle it to the notice of publishers of newspapers and a respectful reading at least by the voters of Massachusetts. The press and the platform are the only means by which they can appeal to the men of our State to grant what we believe and insist is a simple right, but as they truly say, "Women had no choice in the election of the senators and representatives who will decide whether this right shall be conceded or not, and they have no opportunity to state their claim in either branch of the legislature."

We do not propose to quote any other portions of the article, though we would like to have it printed in full in every newspaper in the commonwealth, but we must say that to us it seems the very height of absurdity to grant the right of suffrage to thousands of ignorant white men at the North, millions of as ignorant black men at the South, hosts of whom have no property to be taxed, no talent or ambition to rise above what they now are, and at the same time deny the right to intelligent women—the peers in intellect of most and the superiors of many of our so-called rulers—whose property in many cases literally their own, for they worked for it, to tax it to benefit those same ignorant, unambitious men of whom we have made mention.

We hear it remarked frequently that if women should be granted the right to vote but few would take advantage of it, and that the better class of women would not go to the polls; to this we reply, that we do not consider the better class of women only those who are satisfied to be cared for, protected, looked after by men. No great cause in this country has ever succeeded that has not had the aid of women,—active, earnest, public-spirited women, and if such women desire to have a voice in the affairs of the State and of the nation, every true man should help them to demand it as their right, not to sue for it as a privilege.

If twenty-five years ago any one had predicted that the time would come when a black man who had been a slave would sit in the Senate of the United States he would have been looked upon as a lunatic. We predict that in much less than twenty-five years women will vote in every State in the Union, and it is the man who, failing to read the signs of the times, has no faith in our prediction, and not ourselves who will be found lacking in the gift of prophecy. The world moves, but never backwards, and woman's influence will grow, it will never fail off.

HARVARD STUDENTS.

Ever since we can remember anything about the college at Cambridge the name of Harvard students has been associated in our minds with an idea of rowdiness. This to some graduate that ancient and very highly honorable institution may seem rather a hard thing for us to say, but any one who reads the papers must feel that it is not strange that we have such an idea; and probably not half of the disgraceful scrapes in which the students engage are reported. If boys or young men belonging to the lower and disorderly classes should misbehave as many of the students at Harvard do, they would be "hauled" and be called to settle an account with the clerk of one of our courts; but the students as a class are the sons of aristocratic parents, and therefore their actions, which in poorer fellow would be rowdiness and disturbances of the peace, are very gently considered and are spoken of as the exuberance of youthful spirits.

Their last notorious exploit in a body was their attendance at the lecture of Oscar Wilde at the Music Hall. Their appearance there was intended as an insult to the lecturer; it was an insult to the remainder of the audience, though they and the lecturer had the good sense to take no particular notice of them. But no one can have a doubt that if the same number of young ruffians from the South Cove had attempted to enter the Music Hall that evening in fantastic costumes, they would have been refused admission.

We must confess that we cannot comprehend why people crowded to see and hear Oscar Wilde at the Music Hall. Their appearance there was intended as an insult to the lecturer; it was an insult to the remainder of the audience, though they and the lecturer had the good sense to take no particular notice of them. But no one can have a doubt that if the same number of young ruffians from the South Cove had attempted to enter the Music Hall that evening in fantastic costumes, they would have been refused admission.

The work on the interior of J. W. Hart & Co.'s factory is progressing under the supervision of the contractor, Mr. Geo. A. Cushing, everything being done in a thorough manner for the convenience of their employees and deferential to their opinions. He was a close reasoner and it is expected that the improvements will be completed in a few weeks. The firm have made quite an increase in their working force the past week.

Funeral.

The obsequies of Mary Isabelle, daughter of Bradford T. Howard, were observed in the Baptist church at noon, last Sunday. The little form repose in a casket of pure white, festooned with silk and decked with fragrant flowers, among the floral offerings before a long and impressive service conducted by Rev. Mr. Nordell, and a quartette furnished appropriate music. Four lads connected with the Sunday School acted as bearers and accompanied the remains to the receiving tomb in the village cemetery.

Misery.

The "Star-Minstrels" of Weymouth, the sons of their humerous entertainments at Clap's Hall, next Monday evening, "The Big Four" have presented new suits at Frank Spear's tailoring establishment and have lots of fun new fun to fire off on that occasion. Go and hear them. They are sure to please all who attend.

A Sunday School Concert.

At the regular Baptist vestry last Sunday evening, the theme of the exercises being the Attributes of God as found in the Psalms. The wife of the pastor had prepared an interesting essay on Sabbath School, which she read with good effect, the large audience listening with silent attention.

Schools and School Teachers.

At the last regular meeting of the Historical Society, Mr. Wales was reading an account of the Weymouth schools and the school teachers of the older times, including a brief sketch of the old 1st district. It will be interesting to many of the GAZETTE readers to know that the old district comprised the whole of ward three or the Landing. The schoolhouse was situated on Front street, opposite the Episcopcal church, on a small lot of land given by the district by Dea. Ebenezer Hunt, as long as it was used for school purposes. About the year 1833, the house became rather small, and the number of scholars fast increasing, it was sold to Mr. Hervey White and moved to a lot in the rear of N. L. White, Esq.'s office in Braintree, remodeled and finished into a dwelling house, which for many years was occupied by Caleb Hunt. At the present time it is occupied by Mr. Phillips Curtis and Granville Thompson. Subsequently another lot of land was purchased from Mr. Hunt, and on that site a large two-story house was built, Mr. Thos. W. Wales, the present keeper, and which is now called the Peacock schoolhouse.

Complimentary.

A correspondent of the Hingham Journal alluding to the reading and concert at South Hingham, recently, pays a high compliment to our Weymouth singers, when he says "we can't do the subject justice. But suffice it to say they sang beautifully. Among the most noticeable pieces were a chorus from 'Faithless,' the Saxon song, and one in which the Cecillas took the stage and the Arions answered from outside. 'The Sparrow's Twitter' and 'Peace the Deep' by the Cecillas, also 'I Wandered by the Brook,' in which Mrs. Worster appeared as soloist, were very fine. 'Health to the Fairies,' and 'The Miller's Song' by the Arions were finely rendered, and 'If I were a Voice,' one of the most difficult and most graceful songs. We give the names of the singers—Cecilla, etc.

Mrs. Barbara Gardell and Mrs. J. G. Worster, soprano; Miss Mary Bates and Mrs. Emma Lane, contralto. Organ quartette—F. Dexter Pratt and Charles H. Newton, tenor; Alpheus Bates, baritone; Ellidge Gardner, basso."

LOCAL TOPICS.

Change of Name.

A curious illustration of change of name occurred recently in our town. In last week's Gazette is the notice of the death of Mrs. Bertha Loud, on the 13th inst., widow of the late Daniel Loud, aged 83 years, 3 months and 21 days." Mrs. Loud was the daughter of Levi and Betsey (Nash) Tirrell, born in Weymouth, 21 October, 1790, and died as above stated, aged 82 years instead of 83. Her parents were Zadie and Tabitha (Cushing) Nash; and this granddaughter, after maternal grandmother; the name however, was contracted to "Bitha," pronounced with the long, and she has been for many years familiarly known as "aunt Bitha." The transcription of the name is not easily explained, but the fact, that it is not associated with the fact, that it is a legitimate name, whereas "Bitha" is only a nickname for another and very different one. Mrs. Loud was known by the longer by that very likely her relatives themselves had forgotten her real name. The genealogist, whose only guide in the records, would find himself sadly at fault in attempting to trace her genealogy, only an acquaintance with the family history would reveal that. Tabitha Tirrell married 7 April, 1828, Lieut. Daniel, son of William and Lucy (Vining) Loud, born 20 April, 1799. He was premarily married, 22 Nov., 1819, Charity, daughter of Benjamin and Anna White, by whom he had several children, one of whom, Alexander, married, 3 March, 1816, Betsey Nash Tirrell, a sister of Tabitha. The first Mrs. Loud died 15 August, 1857, and was buried in the Old Burial Ground, Weymouth, at the age of 82 years. This second marriage of the father to the sister of his son's wife must have created something of a complication in the family connections, the father being brother-in-law to his own son, and the wife mother-in-law to her own sister; while the children would be at the same time brothers, cousins, uncles and nephews. N.

Decades.

Mr. Eugene Murphy died at his residence in Weymouth on Saturday, last, of pneumonia, aged 55 years & 6 months, 15 days.—Funeral services were held Monday, conducted by Rev. Anson Titus. Mr. Murphy was a soldier and sailor during the Mexican war, and served on board the sloop-of-war Cyane. After his discharge he came to East Weymouth and worked at shoemaking, removing afterward to the Landing, where he has been for several years employed as a gardener for the Misses Cowing. He leaves a widow and several children, who deeply mourn their loss.

"F. H. T." informs us that he has an interesting ledger kept by the deceased during his naval service, and will furnish it for publication soon.

An Entertainment.

Will be given at the lecture room of the Union church Wednesday evening, March 1, at 7.45, consisting of readings by Miss E. S. Chadbourn, of Boston, and vocal music, with violin and piano accompaniment by Miss Abby Rogers. Admission 25 cents. Proceeds for North High School.

Historical Lecture.

Our townsmen, Rev. Anson Titus, Jr., will deliver the monthly lecture before the New England Genealogical-Historic Society. We hope he will be looked upon as a success. We predict that in much less than twenty-five years women will vote in every State in the Union, and it is the man who, failing to read the signs of the times, has no faith in our prediction, and not ourselves who will be taxed to protect, provided, looked after by men. Mr. Wales was Postmaster at Weymouth four years under President Fillmore, and was twice elected Special Commissioner for New England, serving from 1851 to 1853. He is a member of town offices.

He was a ready and able debater in town meetings, and his presence was always desired when of moment were before the town. Mr. Wales was also active in the formation of the Village Cemetery, representing at the outset in 1848 parish with which he was connected with that of St. Peter's, and was a most enjoyable one.

The C. T. C. Union are making preparations for their annual Fair which will soon occur.

Mr. C. W. Rice found his horse with a broken leg Monday morning upon going to the stable to harness up. As the injury was incurable, the services of Capt. Gary were secured to shoot him.

David Stoddard's horse fell down near Stimson's grocery store, Monday, but no damage was done.

Mechanics Temple of Honor are making active preparations for holding their annual fair the first of next month.

WHITTEN'S
QUEEN OF THE FOREST
COMPOUND, OR GREAT
LUNG
A REMEDY FOR COUGHS & COLDS.

This preparation has been compounded with the best and most of all the essential properties of the various Cherry Pectoral Compounds, but it is superior to them for the removal of the disease.

ESPECIALLY EXCELLENT IN CASE OF SUPPURATING TUBERCULOSIS, DISEASE,
PREDOMINATED WITH STUFFED UP
FEELING, WHEN THE BRONCHIA ARE SO TIGHT AS TO PREVENT A HEALTHY STATE.

This article has been thoroughly tested, and many physicians have spoken in the highest praise of this compound, and it is their patient's favorite to any other Lung Remedy

now before the public.

This Medicine has not yet got up in the market, and cannot enter into the combination, and their effect upon the disease for it is

As stated, this Compound is not a matter of great importance, and is entirely scientific for the purpose for which I recommend it, and now will give you a few words of the disease.

This Remedy will recommend itself as the Compound will be recommended to the public,

Entertainment.

The Ladies connected with the 2d Congregational church gave fine entertainment in the vestry of their church last week Thursday evening, and enjoyed a fine singing the first part of the evening, after which the party proceeded to the residence of Mr. Charles Williston, and enjoyed a fine dance to the excellent music which was furnished on this occasion. During the sing at Miss Burbank, Misses Ellen and Hattie Newcomb favored the guests with a fine duet, and which was rendered by them with excellent taste, and received a merit of applause from the company present.
